

A GENUINE HAUNTED HOUSE WITH ALL THE SUPERNATURAL MANIFESTATIONS.

The excitement over ghosts at Marillo's house, in the Mission valley, continues to increase, and large crowds of people flocked there yesterday to see for themselves the doings of the ethereal visitors. Night before last Messrs. Phil. Brady and E. W. Elliot passed several hours in the house, and they tell of wonderful things happening under their observation, such as the inability of half a dozen persons to prevent a table, when placed in the middle of the floor, from moving against the wall; their utter failure for hours to light a lamp or candle, and of hearing strange rappings throughout the house. The Rev. Father Ubach, in a letter to a gentleman in this city, inviting him to come and view the premises, says: "You will be satisfied that there is something very extraordinary going on there that beats anything I have either read of or seen of that kind. I challenge any man, no matter who, to contradict or deny its fearful reality. The performance there was simply terrific, and surpasses anything that spiritualists can account for."

Numbers of persons who went out yesterday attest the truth of the assertions already made concerning the haunted premises. The family, owing to their reduced circumstances and the fact that harvest time has arrived, cannot leave the house and are in a constant state of terror. Nearly all the clothing of the ladies has been torn up, and only that on their persons is not cut, torn or destroyed.

A visitor who left the scene of excitement at 1 o'clock yesterday, said that the only manifestation made up to that time during the day, was to upset another bee-hive and to write the names of persons on a paper in the room. Another large delegation of citizens will visit the premises to-day. (San Diego News, May 2d.)

DEATH OF A VERMONT HERMIT.—A peculiar personage, Andrew Van Tuyl Leavitt, recently died at Willingford, a village between Rutland and Bennington. Mr. Leavitt was very wealthy, and related by marriage to President Hough, of Middlebury College, and President Haskell, of Vermont University. His only brother is David Leavitt, the millionaire banker of New York. The subject of this sketch was in many respects singular—an habitual philanthropist, a hermit, unostentatious, retiring in disposition, yet a proverbial wit among the simple village folk, to whom he became so much attached that the allurements of the palatial residence of his brother, though frequently tendered to him, could not induce him to live anywhere but in a simple hut on Sugar Hill. He left Middlebury College in 1815, and was the oldest living graduate from that institution. In 1818 he married, and was devotedly attached to his wife, who accompanied him everywhere. The aged couple have been accustomed to arising at daybreak and taking long walks among the mountains and valleys, to which Mr. Leavitt seemed singularly attached. His charities were innumerable and continual, always bestowed privately, and many years of his life were devoted to singling out impoverished families and alleviating their condition. It is thought that he has expended hundreds of thousands of dollars in this manner. He has been known to take a group of ragged orphans to a clothing store and send them home rejoicing with new habiliments from shoes to hats. His death caused a widespread regret in that locality, where his general, hearty, old-school, gentlemanly face and manner were so well known. (From the Troy Times.)
